

Writing Styles and Emotional Responses

Date started: 28th October, 2025

By Fathima Ruhi Amisa

Grade 9

This project is created with the intention to study whether writing styles can influence reader's emotional response and empathy. Despite having very limited number of people who gave the survey, attempts to accurately present information has been made. Every responder gave the survey consentfully.

The findings aim to shed light on how language can shape emotional understanding and improve communication in literature, education, and media.

The result might not be precise due to the small number of participants.