Objective: Write a survey with a request for the respondentss to taste something sweet before answering questions. Involve questions of social situations, emotional responses, and decision making. Add an attention check question. Upload it on Surveyswap.

Actions Taken: Objective done. I have made the surveys using Microsoft Forms and published it. However, this one only includes sweet flavor as Surveyswap doesn't allow identical surveys to be released. The questions have also been randomized to make sure the respondents don't follow a pattern.

Observations: While thinking, I realized bitter taste may need stricter allergy check.

Changes: None yet.

Next step: Wait for the sweet-involved survey to be filled so surveys for other tastes can be conducted.
